What is Title I?

Title I (pronounced “Title One”) is the largest federal aid program for elementary, middle, and high schools. Through Title I, the Federal government gives money to school districts around the country based on the number of low-income families in each district. Each district uses its Title I money for extra educational services for children who are behind in school.

It is based on three important ideas:

1. All students should work toward the same high standards.

Title I’s job is to provide help to students who need it to make sure they reach the same standards as everyone else in their school or district. Standards describe what students should know and be able to do at each grade level.

2. Local districts, schools, and parents know best what their students need to succeed. Title I allows them to decide how to use Title I money to help students who are behind.

3. Parents are partners in helping all students achieve. Parents have the right to be involved in the design and operation of their school’s Title I program. At the same time, parents have a responsibility to help their children succeed in school.

4. How can Title I money be used?

Districts, schools, and parents have a choice in how they set up their Title I program, as long as it helps low-achieving students meet the same standards that have been set for all other students. For example,

Title I Monies can be used to:

- provide after-school, weekend or summer school programs;
- train teachers and other staff;
- buy equipment and learning materials;
- support parent involvement activities;
- hire special teachers, tutors or aides (usually in reading, language arts or math).

5. How can I find out what my Title I program offers parents?

All Title I programs must have in place a plan for how it will involve parents. This plan is called a parent engagement plan which is housed in our Director of Federal Programs Office and can be viewed at any time.

6. How will I know if the Title I program at my child’s school is working?

Schools need to show that their Title I programs are working by viewing their APY Status.

Dear Parents/Guardians:

As you know, Perea Elementary School is dedicated to ensuring that our students succeed. While we have always held high expectations for our students, the federal No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (NCLB) has set new standards for students to meet.

The state report identifies whether schools have met “Annual Measurable Objectives” (AMOs)-a simple yes or no grade based on a complex set of measurements. To meet our AMOs, each school must achieve targets: areas of test participation and performance measured across subgroups of students (grouped by such categories as race, language proficiency, and disability). Also, schools must meet graduation rates and attendance targets.

Our mission is to prepare students academically, socially, and emotionally for success today and tomorrow.

Our school is filled with outstanding teachers, and staff, who regularly update their skills and participate in training to help them meet the needs of all students.

You are an important partner in our effort to provide the best education possible for your child. Please call the school if you have any questions or would like additional information. Please feel free to call (901) 203-6420, or email.

Sincerely,
